Company Man Studios Announces Move to Seminole Heights in September 2025

TAMPA, FL – 7/24/25 — Company Man Studios, one of Tampa Bay’s leading video production companies, is excited to announce its upcoming relocation to the vibrant Seminole Heights neighborhood of Tampa. The move is slated for September 2025, with the company’s new home at 6600 N. Florida Avenue—in a building with a 100-year heritage.

For over a decade, Company Man has been crafting brand films, commercials, web videos, info animations, digital ads, and social content in its current studio near downtown Tampa. Clients include Lowe’s, Achieva Credit Union, Tom Brady, the University of Tampa, ConnectWise, WellCare, and many more.

This next chapter in Seminole Heights aligns with the CMS mission to stay inspired, connected, and energized by its clients and the communities it serves. “Seminole Heights has always been a hub for creative thinkers, culinary artists, entrepreneurs, and more,” said Rob Tiisler, Executive Creative Director and founder of Company Man Studios. “This move isn’t just about a change of scenery—it’s about engaging ourselves more deeply in a dynamic neighborhood that shares our independent spirit and passion for creativity.”

The new studio location at 6600 N. Florida Ave., which housed a previous local business, is now being thoughtfully redesigned to support modern production services mixed with the unique design style Company Man is known for.

With this purchase, Company Man looks forward to not only drawing inspiration from Seminole Heights’ unique artistic vibe but also contributing to the community’s innovative reputation.

Stay tuned for updates and an official open house event later this year.
